May Day, May Day

STUDENTS AT Carmel River School participated in the school's annual May Day festivities at the lower playground. Students from each of the school's classes performed dances ranging from rap and '50s rock 'n' roll to square dancing, The Charleston and the traditional May Pole Dance. At least 300 parents and family members attended the event, which also included the official opening of the school's new playground equipment, which was entirely financed by the school's parent-teacher association. Afterward kids and family members had lunch together at the school. (Mac McDonald photos.)

Odellos closing in on OK for Coast Ranch

By DAVID LELAND

AN OPTIMISTIC Odello family is poised to enter the Monterey County Supervisors chambers later this month in search of Coast Ranch approval.

Having been given a thumbs-up by the Monterey County Planning Commission last week (7-1, with Commissioner Jo Stallard dissenting), Coast Ranch has entered uncharted ground. For three decades the family has remained mired at the planning commission level.

"I feel good about it (hearing)," said Bruno Odello, who with his sister, Bruna, has spent more than 30 years attempting to subdivide a portion of the family's artichoke fields east of Highway 1. "We hope to now put this to rest."

The application is scheduled to be heard at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, May 28, in the supervisors chambers in Salinas.

The Coast Ranch application entails subdividing a portion of the family's 134-acre parcel into 76 lots. Six additional units would be dedicated to moderate-income housing, with the six red farmworker cabins upgraded into moderate-income units.

After many years and different variations on design for the land, the Odellos appear to have reached a moderate plan that has gained support among local residents and the Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, who worry that intense flooding could wreak havoc with The Crossroads and Mission Fields areas.

"We are very fortunate that we did not have a wet cycle (this year)," said Odello, referring to previous floods that devastated the lower Carmel River. "That river can get real mean in no time at all."

Under an agreement with the county, the Odellos have decided to lower the levee on the south side of their land to facilitate flooding, which would alleviate any problems on the north side of the Carmel River.

"We can continue to farm and give the north side of the river some flood relief," Odello said, referring to plans for the family to continue growing artichokes on 46 acres of the land. "I think everybody should be happy."

And while the county planning staff had previously said that traffic trips generated from Coast Ranch would impact Highway 1, it appears that a petition-driven flood-control campaign has been successful.

"I cannot see anybody protesting this plan" Odello said. "The benefits to the community are overriding."

Should the board approve Coast Ranch it will then be heard by the state Coastal Commission.

It must also receive approval from the Local Agency Formation Commission regarding annexation in to a sewer district and fire protection area.

CHS students now required to perform community service

By DAVID LELAND

AN INNOVATIVE student community service requirement at Carmel High School has placed the school in the limelight, as other districts from countywide ponder the pros and cons of the program.

A part of the high school's new Education Plus program, which was initiated this spring to facilitate positive educational change, the community service segment is designed to consciously foster greater cooperation between school and community.

Officials also anticipate that it will provide a model for students to develop activities promoting life-long service in the community.

Body of Carmel woman found at Point Lobos

By JOHN DETRO

DID KATE Bartels of Carmel drown in the ocean just off Whaler's Cove near Point Lobos?

Monterey County sheriff's investigators were seeking Wednesday to determine the exact cause of the 50-year-old woman's death.

State divers recovered her body from the water on Tuesday, following a report that she was missing on Sunday. Officers had found her car parked at Carmel Point and her clothing on the beach at Stewart's Cove.

Official sheriff's spokesmen were unavailable for comment at deadline, despite repeated efforts by this newspaper to obtain a statement on the investigation. It was understood from a knowledgeable source that the probe would continue for 30 days —until toxicology reports were in hand.

"Things aren't always what they appear to be on the surface," said the source who's close to the investigation. "And there's always the possibility of foul play. This type of case doesn't usually receive the attention of an investigator. But the matter can't be characterized officially until the investigation has been completed."

Kate Bartels had been missing since the weekend. Her body was recovered at 9:25 Tuesday morning.

Helping hands

Dear Editor:

The CHS economic corporations, Slurp N Burp, Marks Comedy Cafe, and Hill Billies International House of Grub, would like to thank all the people who lent a helping hand, and made these projects possible, including teachers and staff, the parents that turned their kitchens into cookie factories, as well as those who donated their time and supplies to help the students make their corporations successful.

Unfair tax

Dear Editor:

The Carmel school district is asking for a very unfair tax of $80 per parcel. This tax impacts greatly on fixed income people living in small houses. We can hardly make ends meet as it is.

I suggest that the school district look to the municipal bus system which operates all over the school district and is underutilized. Let the kids "Ride the bus with us."

I suggest that the schools and business form a partnership program of apprenticeships in the fields of shop and computers and let students learn on the job, in summer or after school as school appears to end around 2 p.m.

Surely the district can utilize its own maintenance people to clean up and paint.

Who's responsible?

Dear Editor:

Whoever was responsible for changing the public restrooms at Carmel River Beach, showed an extraordinary lack of foresight and intelligence.

Firstly, making them UNISEX.

Secondly, replacing two private toilets with one (no door) and so many elderly people will have difficulty.

Thirdly, putting a bolt on the inside of the entrance door is an open invitation to all kinds of abuse.

Examples: rape, molestation, child abuse, homosexual acts, children playing , etc.

Upon questioning a park employee whether the two toilets would be replaced in view of the fact so many hundreds of people and mainly tourists, use this state beach on a day-long basis, I was amazed when he said, "No."

He then pointed out that both restrooms were now UNISEX which was not a good idea as there had already been three complaints of indecent exposure when men had not locked the door. Very likely it won't be long before some vandal will remove the bolt.

I cannot understand this lack of foresight and who was responsible for such a misguided and ridiculous decision. I trust it will be remedied and the restrooms properly restored with the previous two toilets each with some privacy. I hope you are not making this same mistake at Monastery Beach restrooms.

As it took years for the City of Carmel to replace the filthy toilets at the bottom of Ocean Avenue and several more to build restrooms opposite Devendorf Plaza, where only service stations and the Pine Inn could offer facilities and not very happily, it appears that the Parks and Recreation Department is continuing it's lack of understanding of people's natural needs.

Carmel booster

Dear Editor:

My wife and I recently had the pleasure of spending our anniversary in Carmel. After a week in San Francisco and northern California, we retreated to Carmel for six days. Although it was our third trip to Carmel, we were looking for new places to see and new restaurants to try.

We had the pleasure of talking with a wonderful "ambassador" for your fair city. The owner of the "Barn Swallow" shop located in The Barnyard was tremendously helpful in suggesting a number of sites to see.

After scouting out a few recommended restaurants for our anniversary, we settled on Anton & Michel and had a wonderful evening. We also spent a fabulous day at Point Lobos State Park thank to her suggestion.

We reluctantly did not get her name. We would like to thank her and let you know that she is a great booster and promoter for Carmel and area.

A special day

Dear Editor:

It's a day for us all because we have an opportunity to recognize, thank and ply with special treats and treatment the person around which families revolve.

This past Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Sunset Theater I was fortunate enough to witness a rare Mother's Day event. I am referring to the piano recital put on by Friends of the Carmel Bach Festival as a special treat for the community and mothers.

On that afternoon the audience at Sunset witnessed the arrival of a major new talent in the world of international caliber pianists.

Brazilian born Jose Carlos Cocarelli presented five compositions, from Mozart to Liszt/Gounod, in a solid completely satisfying two hours of masterfully played music.

I don't.'t pretend to be a professional music critic but like most I appreciate the wonderful playing, the sincere emotion and strong interpretation presented by Cocarelli. Of the many who attended Sunday's recital the audience covered the gamut of young to old, knowledgeable to enthusiastically appreciative.

Carmel 's unique in its cultural heritage and richness. I think those in the the audience would join me in saying that Sunday afternoon with Jose Carlos Cocarelli made this Mother's Day even more special for us all.

We have witnessed the arrival of a young man who. I am sure, will one day be an internationally know star of piano. I am sure no one could play the Liszt "Paraphrase on the waltz" from Gounod's Faust with the exactness and emotion demonstrated by Cocarelli!

With sincere thanks to the friends of the Bach Festival for bringing Jose Carlos Cocarelli to Carmel.

Important and exciting project

THE CARMEL Planning Commission in in the midst of a complete review of the commercial district zoning at the request of the Carmel City Council. This is an important and exciting project.

The final package that the commission sends to the Carmel City Council will hopefully be a major step towards simplification and improvement of our commercial zoning and the revitalization of the downtown area.

At our last special meeting of April 17th, the Carmel Planning Commission received a wide range of public comments which were extremely useful to the commission. The council chamber was SRO, demonstrating that everyone is interested in working towards a healthy business district. As chairman of the planning commission, I felt it was one of the best meetings we have ever had.

Speakers on behalf the Carmel Residents Association and the Carmel Business Association provided thoughtful and informative ideas and comments on the business district. Former Mayor Barney Laiolo provided a brief historical overview of the business area, which helped frame some of the issues before us. Others brought many good ideas to the table.

Planning Director Diane White and Brian Roseth provided a professional planning perspective and assisted the commission in converting our ideas and goals into a comprehensive zoning package for discussion.

I believe Jane Mayer of the CRA summed up the consensus view stating that some changes are necessary. No question about that; the existing zoning scheme hasn't produced the type of business district envisioned by Carmel residents and the majority of business owners.

To that end, Gary Luce of the CBA pledged the assistance and cooperation of the CBA in working with not only city staff and the commission, but with the residents association and others. Open and frank discussions between these organizations and others were very constructive.

The question is:

1) Should we change the three existing commercial zones and make them two to allow continuing protection and buffering of the residential zones?

2) Should we reduce the entire business zone to one commercial zone?

3) Should we keep the use permit process?

4) Should we simplify it to facilitate its application?

5) Should all businesses operate solely on a business license and be controlled by built-in stipulations individual to each license?

But while none of us have all the answers, we can and do have common goals. While we need a healthy business community, we must also continue working to reduce the impacts of the business district on the surrounding residential neighborhoods. If we can do that, I believe the community will be very well served.

Personally, I believe zoning should be used to help restore Carmel's business community to its former stature, both financially and by way of providing needed services to the community. We must also strive to improve the quality and diversity of the district.

I believe if we think and share our respective responsibilities, it will result in a healthy and vigorous business district continuing within the protective umbrella of our small residential village.

Be sure and attend our next special meeting at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, May 22nd in the Carmel City Council Chambers. Mark your calendars. Come and bring your friends.

The commission and staff look forward to your continued participation and support on May 22nd.

Music maven imparts 'insider' wisdom to local students

By DAVID LELAND

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA music business maven Steve Shore has descended upon the peninsula with a simple message for would-be moguls, folk singers and rock stars: there's no place like home.

Indeed, with just a handful of conglomerates now owning the major record companies in Hollywood, it's smart business to pursue the smaller, independent labels and recording studios existing on the Monterey Peninsula.

'No one knows anything about the music business. Music education will be the wave of the future; it's a $4 billion industry.'
- Steve Shore

"I hate see people go out of the area to record," says Shore, 48, referring to local groups who spend thousands of dollars making demonstration tapes in Los Angeles that rarely get listened to by people in a decision-making capacity. "It makes no sense."

Shore knows from where he speaks.

For the past 20 years, Shore has been a major player in every aspect of the entertainment industry. He has now returned to Carmel to relay his experiences during evening classes at Carmel High School.

"No one knows anything about the music business," says Shore, who graduated from Carmel High School in 1962. "Music education will be the wave of the future; it's a $4 billion industry."

Offered through the Regional Occupation Program, which provides technical training for students in a myriad of classes, Shore's sessions explore every aspect of the music industry.

"I give them every piece of information I can possibly find for them," says Shore, who began his musical journey under the tutelage of retired Carmel High music teacher John Farr. "I've shown them all the horrendous mistakes I have made."

The class is offered at no charge from 7-10:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Wednesday in Room 25 at the high school. Thus far, about 60 students between the ages of 18 and 65 have reaped Shore's knowledge.

To call Shore a refuge from Los Angeles would be erroneous — he was born and raised in Carmel. However, the man who is on a first-name basis with power players such as record mogul David Geffen is thrilled to have landed back in Carmel.

"Now that I'm back here I feel real," says Shore, who still travels to Los Angeles on business several times a week. "Hollywood believes its own B.S.; that's a terminal problem."

The road to success began in Oregon for Shore, who was instrumental in promoting concerts during the '60s, while attending Willamette University studying political science and history.

"We didn't know what we were doing," says Shore, of his experience in bringing artists such as Three Dog Night and Stevie Wonder to the university town. "It happened in the '60s and that's what we did. It was a different time, it was like falling down stairs."

To say the promoters were unrefined would be an understatement, with money collected in brown Safeway grocery bags and distributed among the artists, remembers Shore.

During the 1970s, Shore spent an increasing amount of time in Hollywood and eventually moved there in the early '80s. For the next decade he was involved in all sides of the industry, from management and tape duplication to contracts and tour promotion.

"I became very, very familiar with the scene," he says, "so much that it began to burn me out. After a while it becomes a ritual dance."

One way out of the Hollywood rat race, Shore found, was to expand his horizons.

"I became fascinated with the Soviet Union in the mid-'80s," he says. "That was the start of a thing that has really kept me going."

Shore's first venture into the Soviet Union involved taking "Clubadobe," one of the bands he managed, on a tour.

The group, which had been unable to generate interest in this country, was a smash in the Soviet Union. They quickly became a household name, with their concerts viewed by as many as 50,000 screaming teenagers.

"It's a whole new frontier," says Shore, who is not musically inclined. "It's the most exciting place on earth right now."

But while the Soviet Union may be the most "exciting," Shore says his heart and enthusiasm continue to be drawn to the peninsula.

"I've discovered that the level of talent on the peninsula is way above what I expected," he says. "There's really good acts here."

He feels an obligation to help these people learn the ropes.

"The scary thing is no one is teaching these things to people who want to make their living in the music business," he says of his class. "You must know how the business works.

Despite his good fortune, Shore says the road has been full of pitfalls; he wants to help his students avoid those problems.

MUSIC-BUSINESS master Steve Shore is currently lending his expertise to peninsula artisans during twice-weekly classes held at Carmel High School. (Mac McDonald photo.)

"You can do what I did and make mistakes or you can learn and find out what not to do," he says, adding that 97 percent of all acts signed to record deals still fail to make fame and fortune.

Shore contrasts Smog City and the peninsula's musical attitudes.

"One of the hazards of the music business is your always focused on such an unreal scene; it's image projection," he says, describing Hollywood. "The peninsula is not a look-at-me area. There's a great dedication here to what people are doing musically.

"There's a lack of overwhelming, gut-wrenching ego that is so prevalent in LA."

National recognition for local synchronized swimmer

HEATHER PEASE of the Cypress Swim Club has just been selected to represent the United States in both Team and Solo competition at the 1991 FINA Junior World Synchronized Swimming Championships in Salerno, Italy, from July 21st through July 31st.

Fifteen-year-old Pease of Carmel Valley qualified for the team at the final phase of USSSI's (United States Synchronized Swimming, Inc.) National Team Trials, held at the University of Arizona in Tucson over the past five days. The top 40 synchronized swimmers in the country vied for positions on both the Junior (ages 14 through 17), and the Senior (age 18 and over), teams over a five-day period of intense competition and constant re-evaluation by the members of the national coaching staff of USSSI.

In the trials, all swimmers were required to learn a complex new routine overnight, then swim it many times over, first in random threesomes, then threesomes in rank order from the first ranking, then in fives, and finally in teams of eight of 10 to determine "blendability and matchability."

Eight members in rank order (plus two alternates), were finally selected for each of the two teams. The judging of each consecutive swim-off was done by a panel of three FINA International judges plus USSSI Technical Director Margo Erickson and US National Team Coach Charlotte Davis.

Final team qualifiers were announced on Monday evening, duets and soloists not until the following day. The Senior team, which will represent the USA in the Pan-Pacific Championships in Tokyo, Japan, and the FINA Cup in Bonn, Germany will include Walnut Creek's Kristin Babb, silver medalist in Solo at the 1991 World Aquatic Championships in January in Perth, Australia; 27-year-old identical twins Karen and Sarah Josephson, gold medalists in Duet in Perth, and silver medalists in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea, also from Walnut Credk; plus Becky Dyroen, Heather Simmons, and Jill Sudduth from Santa Clara; and Michelle Svitenko from Walnut Creek.

Joining Heather Pease on the Junior team will be Annemarie Alm, Santa Clara; Tammy Cleland, Walnut Creek; Heidi Dunham, Mesa, Ariz.; Laurie McClelland, Walnut Creek; Jenny Ohanesian, Walnut Creek; Sadie Pietras, Tacoma, Wash.; and Jennifer Vorheis, Walnut Creek; with alternates Kelly Olesen of Santa Clara and Becky Jasontek of Cincinnati, Ohio.

This marks the first time in history that the members of this team have come from clubs other than Walnut Creek and Santa Clara (the two top clubs in the nation), with a total of six different teams represented.

Solo and Duet selection for each team was made by the national coaching staff in consultation with US National Team Coach Charlotte Davis, herself the former coach of Tracie Ruiz and Candy Costie, gold medalists at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Coaches fo the Junior team will be Pam Edwards of Walnut Creek and Betty Hazle of Santa Clara.

Kristin Babb of Walnut Creek was named as soloist for the Senior team and Heather Pease as soloist for the Junior team. The Josephson twins were selected as the senior duet, and Laurie McClelland and Jenny Ohanesian of Walnut Creek as the junior duet.

According to Cypress Swim Club coaches Donn Squire and Del Neel, this opportunity will give tremendous impetus to the future career of the youthful Pease.

"Traditionally the swimmer named as the soloist is the one with the greatest future potential as determined by the national coaching staff," said Squire. So Pease's selection as the USA's only representative in the solo event at the Junior World Championships is very, very significant."

At the most recent Junior World Championships, held in Quito, Ecuador in 1989, the winning soloist was Becky Dyroen of Santa Clara, who is now the second-ranked US soloist and the greatest challenge to national solo champion Kristin Babb of Walnut Creek.

"It is hoped that this rare opportunity, coupled with Pease's remarkable natural talent and technical skill, will catapult her into the ranks of the world's foremost synchronized swimmers in the 1990s and a prominent spot on the team which will represent the USA in the 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta, Ga.," Squire said.

Corrections

IN LAST week's Pine Cone a quote by 5th District Supervisor Karin Strassser Kauffman in a story on Carmel Greens was misprinted, which caused some concern among local residents.

"We should hear applications from someone with no hope of being approved" was wrong.

Instead the quote should have said, "We should not hear applications from someone who has no hope of being approved."

ALSO, IN last week's issue it was erroneously stated that Carmel resident Ann Beckett's nomination to the Carmel Planning Commission by Mayor Jean Grace was approved by the Carmel City Council at its May 7 meeting.

In reality Beckett was rejected by the council on a 3-2 vote, with Grace and Councilman Bob Fischer in the minority.

Valley old-timer led first Cachagua wild boar hunts

By Susan Beck

(Editor's Note: William Lambert, who was interviewed a few weeks ago for this interview, died May 19 at his home in Cachagua. He was 79. Services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, May 17 at the Struve & LaPorte Funeral Chapel in Salinas.)

THEY CAME from as far away as New Zealand and Germany to hunt wild boar in the backlands of Cachagua.

Seeking the challenge of killing a wild pig, men and women came from all over the world to hook up with William Lambert, a life-time Cachagua resident, who initiated wild boar hunting parties in the valley.

For almost 40 years Lambert headed hunting parties on horseback to the remote areas of his ranch in search of their prey, the Russian Ridgeback.

The ridgeback was first brought to Monterey County in 1921 by George Gordon Moore, the former owner of the 21,000-acre San Carlos Ranch in Carmel Valley. Lambert, a friend of the San Carlos Ranch owner, said that Moore brought 11 sows and two boars from Tennessee and South Carolina.

Lambert said that Moore had, "a bunch of billionaire friends who owned 8,000 acres in North and South Carolina with several exotic animals on their property, including the ridgeback."

Moore also brought a red pig from Chile to his ranch that William Randolph Hearst had on his property at San Simeon. Lambert said that some of the Chilean pigs eventually ended up on his ranch in Cachagua and bred with the ridgeback.

Moore kept the boars in pens to breed them. "He kept them in so long, that one of them got to be 750 pounds," said Lambert.

The ridgeback was introduced to the Cachagua area around 1932 when Lambert's son-in-law, Ed Nason, secretly brought a sow with piglets and "a belly full" of piglets yet to be born, to the Lambert Ranch.

Lambert enjoyed hunting wild pigs, and often took his friends along. By 1935 he had gained a following and boar hunting parties on his ranch became a tradition.

During those first years, Lambert took his friends hunting just to get together and have a good time. He gladly covered all the costs of the excursions.

Over the years, however, Lambert's reputation spread and his hunting parties were extended to friends of friends and their friends. Yet, he still provided provisions at his expense.

However, at some point Lambert started charging $100 a day for his hunting trips. He was not exactly sure when that happened, but he was sure of why.

One day, out in the back hills of his ranch, a group of hunters had stalked a wild boar. During the fight to bring him down, one of Lambert's hunting dogs was attacked. The visit to the veterinarian saved his pal's life, but at considerable expense. Lambert asked his friends to help defer the cost, which they did. From that time on, everyone chipped in to pay for the hunting trips.

The average hunting party lasted three days, and it usually took Lambert that much time in advance to set up camp midway between his ranch in Cachagua and the coast. He rode in with 10 to 12 pack horses hauling food for the hunters and hay for the horses. Sometimes he used helicopters to carry in the provisions, but, "I got into a lot of trouble with the government," so he went back to horse caravans.

Stories abound surrounding the wild boar hunts on Lambert's property, and he enjoyed talking about them. When he told his tales of the hunts, he made it sound like something anyone could do, but be certain that even the experts were up for a challenge.

On one trip, two men were hired from Germany to take a group out in Cachagua, said Lambert. In Germany, wild pigs were not as large as they were here, and hunters speared them from horseback. The German lancers, on horseback, approached a wild pig, and charged. To their surprise, they couldn't drive the spear in, and were knocked off their horses.

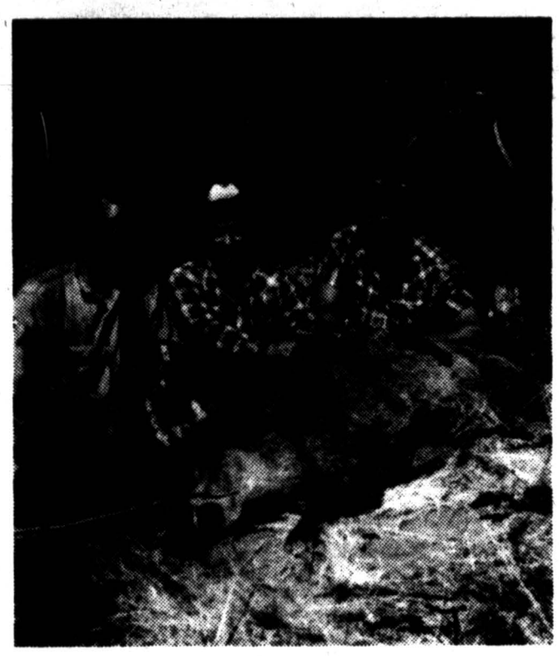
Wild boars have a 4-to 5-inch-wide armor plate much like gristle, which is very difficult to penetrate. The lancers found themselves in a dilemma because they couldn't kill the boar.

No one brought a gun, so one of the hunters had to go back to the house to get one. The boar was shot and killed, and the lancers went back to Germany a little unnerved, said Lambert.

On another trip, at about the same time, a young hunter was equally enamored with the idea of spearing a wild boar. He didn't ride a horse, but approached the boar on foot, lance in hand, an unwise and dangerous decision. Unlike the German lancers he, however, was successful in his pursuit, said Lambert.



WILLIAM LAMBERT (center), with friends and a wild boar they just killed out in the backlands of the Lambert Ranch in Cachagua.

He retired from wild boar hunting about 16 years ago. One of his two sons, Rod, continued with the tradition for a few years, but didn't stick with it.

There are still several ranchers in Cachagua who carry on the traditional wild boar hunts, but the past few years of the drought have diminished the numbers of wild boar roaming the hills. In addition to the drought, mountain lions have reduced the herds, said Lambert.

Wild male pigs only hunt for food at night, but the sows hunt all the time to feed their offspring. During the day the sow will go down to water, and she and her piglets become easy prey for mountain lions, whose numbers have increased because, "some idiot put a stop to killing the lions," said Lambert.

The Cachagua rancher made an attempt during his hunting days to protect the sows and their piglets. Lambert befriended "some congressmen and senators" who helped him establish a law not to kill boars during the summer months.

He said that hunters looking for deer would often see a sow, kill it, leaving the piglets to the lions. "Los Padres forest is good for nothing but pigs, so give them a chance to multiply," said Lambert. While he was hunting, the law worked for the most part, but when he retired, boar hunting was again allowed all year.

With the advent of recent rains on the Monterey Peninsula, the state Department of Fish and Game reports that the boar population in the valley is on the rise. The feral, a domestic pig in the Cachagua area, is also adding to the abundance of wild pigs in the area.

There were hundreds of hunting stories to tell, but it all seemed like a long time ago, said Lambert. He hadn't hunted boar for a long time, but that was all right with him, he was looking forward to his 80th birthday celebration May 19 on the ranch.

One of the stories he certainly would have shared again with his family and friends at his birthday party was the time a sow charged him because he killed her piglet.

"I had nowhere to go but up a tree. Unfortunately, the tree was not very strong and began to tip downward into the sow's range," said Lambert.

"One out of 20 boars will charge, this one did and kept after me, and I ended up spending about five hours waiting for the sow to leave."

Community service

notion...that after they move into a community they might take part in service," said CHS Principal Marie Ishida.

Ishida said the concept was borne out of a civics project last year that, under the tutelage of Jack Ellena, embodied students helping in the community.

"Students can make a difference in the community," Ishida said.

Here's how it works.

Beginning next year, entering freshmen will be required to fulfill 60 hours of community service during their next four years at the high school.

For continuing students, the hours will be pro-rated as follows:

Class of 1992: 15 hours
Class of 1993: 30 hours
Class of 1994: 45 hours

"Society has not really taken advantage of these kids in a positive way," said Ellena, a social science teacher who will oversee the program.

Ellena added that the community, since learning about the new regimen, has demonstrated overwhelming interest. Thus far, the community service list includes Carmel Foundation, Volunteer Center of the Monterey Peninsula, Alliance on Aging, Salvation Army, Special Olympics, Alliance for the Mentally Ill and Friends of the Sea Otter.

Jobs will be displayed on a community service board in the administration wing of the high school. The board will also feature students who have completed their service requirement.

All student-initiated projects must receive approval from a council composed of five students and as many teachers, with at least one faculty member in approval.

As a rule, community service hours will not be given in lieu of class time, except in rare situations.

However, students wishing to get a head start on next year's community service hours can begin this summer.

Rejected commission applicant still has hopes for city position

By SUSAN BECK

ANN BECKETT may still have a chance to become a Carmel Planning Commissioner, but whether she does or not, there seems no doubt she will be an integral part of shaping the city's future.

Beckett is an architectural designer and was nominated by Mayor Jean Grace at the Carmel City Council meeting on May 7 to take Barbara Lysle's place on the planning commission. Lysle resigned due to an illness.

The council rejected the mayor's choice by a 3-2 vote. Members, Ken White, Barbara Brooks and James Wright voted no.

Beckett has a bachelor 's degree in environmental science from UC Davis and works with her husband, Bill, a contractor, as a designer. She has also worked as a carpenter, building one house using someone else's design, and one house that she designed.

Beckett has helped design and build 14 homes, four in Carmel, with her husband over the past 13 years.

She said that when she designs a house, she does her best to stay within the traditions and character of Carmel.

"I try to stay in the middle of the road, but some change is good. You don't want a stagnant community. We have some valuable assets in Carmel worth saving, but some things need change, more flexibility."

Her interest in becoming a commissioner is "philanthropic." "It's a difficult job to be on the planning commission, but I have an expertise and my time would be well spent in a voluntary way, " she said.

Beckett understands that the city council thinks she is qualified to be on the commission, but, "the city is very conservative about stepping down when there is a possibility of a conflict interest."

Council member Ken White said that Beckett, "Is real intelligent. She's an outstanding person, and I hope to get her on other committees in the community. White nominated her for the 2016 Committee of which she is now a member.

White voted no because of Beckett's real estate background. He said that there are already two other real estate agents on the seven-member commission.

The problem is that there are a lot of use permits that require five votes to be approved, said White. If Beckett were appointed to the planning commission, there would be three people in real estate required to step down because of a conflict of interest, leaving only four votes.

"The council is trying to get a diversity of different professions and different ideas," said White. "We are looking for someone with a different viewpoint. "

He also said that the council wants to get more women on the commission. "There are several applications from other women. We have lots of other people with different backgrounds that we could choose from."

There is one woman and five men on the commission.

Grace said that she will submit a name at next month's council meeting, but has not decided whether it will be Beckett's.

In her view none of the reasons given by the opposing council members were compelling enough to reject her nomination.

The mayor , however, does not have any veto powers, said Grace, "I'm not obligated to nominate anyone I'm not comfortable with. I feel it's important to get someone on the planning commission who can work with the team.

"I don't like to see the position empty, but I have learned the hard way with regard to the community's integrity that it's important that I put a person on that I think can do the job, not just for the sake of filling the slot. I will not do that again," said Grace.

Council member Barbara Brooks agreed with White that it's conceivable if Beckett were on the commission, she and the other two real estate agents would have to step down on certain decisions.

"Ann's a fine candidate, but I would like to see more diversity of professions on the commission," Brooks said.

Grace is trying to get a woman and someone younger on the commission, and she said there are several qualified applicants. The overriding factors for the position are being able to listen; be courteous to the public, and able to give all points of view a hearing including colleagues.

Beckett said that she believes there's a time and place for everything. "Perhaps, if not now, there will be a place for me on the commission in the future."

Cowboy Saturday Night

"It was getting late now.
They walked side by side, anyhow.
He went ahead and opened up the gate now.
She wanted to thank him but she didn't know how.
But he was a man and she was a cow."

– Grant Risdon
– Carmel Valley

COWGIRLS AND cowboys of all kinds whooped it up from the top of the Lambert Ranch in Cachagua to the sand dunes of Spanish Bay this past weekend.

Generally city dwellers on the peninsula don't give much thought to the fact that just a 45-minute drive away cowboys still herd cattle and drive in to the post office once a month to pick up their mail. But last Saturday night there was a wrangler on every street corner. Demand for Western garb the past few weeks has been hotter than Rita Coolidge's newest album. The Farm Center in mid-valley ran out of jean jackets and bolo ties and Sensations in Carmel put away the sequined admiral's caps in favor of cowboy glitz and Brahma bull belt buckles. It was hard to tell the tenderfeet from the old hands.

Why? LifeSavers, The Committee chose a flashy Western theme and called it the "Rhinestone Roundup." It was difficult to get a reading on the who's who scale of local socialites attending the Roundup, especially the ladies. Jewel-encrusted, tight-fitting, sequined chaps riveted eyes to attributes rodeo cowboys find most appealing in those cute barrel-racing girls.

Gold lame, spangles, studs, jeweled fringe; The Inn at Spanish Bay was transformed into Las Vegas North for the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center's annual fund-raiser. Corporate types were offered red bandanas as they entered the chuckwagon and photographer Tom O'Neal recorded the moment for couples like Sam (or was it Sue?), and Patricia Garrett.

Star attraction Rita Coolidge came on stage in a sequined cowboy hat, which she immediately doffed (don't call her a Country-Western singer), blue denim skirt, sequined denim vest and silver concha belt. She delivered two hot numbers to the enthusiastic crowd and then said, "I feel good about people dancing, so if you want to dance, it's OK with me."

She didn't have to ask twice. The dance floor filled with sequins and spangles as Rita belted out old hits and selections from her new album, Fire Me Back.

LifeSavers, The Committeee corraled another winner.

President Karen Hunter didn't have the final net proceeds figure at press time, but estimated that with the help of Rita Coolidge, the auction portion of the evening pulled in around $20,000. Coolidge got into the auction act and offered the shirt, or jacket off her back. The gold-studded, fringed jacket had been a gift from Willie Nelson and local entertainer Greg Franks bid $2,000 for the collector's item. Singer Stephanie Snuggs and the Franks band closed out the evening for the fun-loving crowd of cowboys and cowgirls.

The net proceeds of the event will be used to continue SPCC's Youth Educational Awareness Program in high schools and middle schools in Monterey and San Benito counties.

Rita Coolidge put it best when she accepted the room full of applause at the "Rhinestone Roundup" and said, "We're all here to save our children with love."

Meanwhile, the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Department cooked up a feast at the Cachagua Community Park for guests attending the wedding of Joleen Lambert and Tom Skinner. Wild boar, hot from a pit in the ground, tri-tips, barbecued spicy sausage; good-natured vegetarians had to settle for a tossed green salad.

Tom and Joleen were married, cowboy-style, on a wild-flowered ridge, high in Carmel Valley, overlooking Los Padres National Forest. The preacher arrived on horseback and the bride and her shotgun-toting father, Rod Lambert, drove up to the meadow in a horse-drawn carriage. The bride and her attendants wore delicate white cowboy boots under their gowns and the groomsmen sported owl feathers in their broad-brimmed hats.

Tom and Joleen have touched many lives in the valley and all the old ranching families were there to wish them a life-time of love.

JUST DESSERTS

Ever since former President Nadine Annand first started the Nurse's Scholarship Fund in 1962, the Women's Civic Club of Pacific Grove has presented awards to peninsula nursing students, frequently Pacific Grove High graduating seniors. Considering the national shortage of nurses, Nadine was ahead of her time 29 years ago when the members of the club had their first "Annual Nurse's Scholarship Benefit" luncheon, to raise funds for the scholarship award. The ladies prepared home-made specialties and served them to members and guests, to save on catering expenses.

Well, after 29 years of carrot and raisin salad, this year club members voted to make dessert instead. Tempting concoctions from local kitchens, a raffle, door prizes and a fashion show kept the nearly 75 members and guests entertained for the afternoon. Their continuing support of hursing education in this area has not gone unappreciated. Former recipients keep in touch and come back to visit the club members on a regular basis.

MOONLIGHT MENU

Don't be misled by the misnomer "Sunset Dinner" at Highlands Inn. Waiters report that guests often mistake the innovative prix fixe dinner created by Chef Brian Whitmer and Cellar Master Mark Jensen as a sort of an "early bird special." "Sunset Dinners'' are available before, during and after the great golden globe has rolled over the horizon.

Whitmer uses the prix fixe venue to showcase new recipes, changing every few weeks and Jensen selects an eclectic array of complementing wines. How do ''Dungeness crab cakes with basil and fresh tomatoes'' served with ''Sparkling Wine, 1983, Blanc de Noirs, late disgorged Scharmsberg Vineyard, Napa'' sound? Or ''Salad of baby artichokes and wild mushrooms with local lettuces'' served with ''French Colombard, 1989, Carmenet Vineyard, Napa.'' Unless you're a wine connoisseur colombard is not a popular favorite. Too sweet! Not so under sommelier Jensen's hand.

CARTOONIST UPDATE

Bill Bates! Please reconsider! ''Coast & Country'' recently ran an item about Carmel cartoonist Bates' rebuff of an offer from the peninsula daily to create a monthly cartoon to add some local flavor to the non-smear pages.

The editor's second choice appears to be something called ''Real Life Adventures.'' Cartoons about blowing your nose or hairs in the bathtub drain don't tickle my funny-bone.

Over the hill in Pacific Grove, PG Monarch cartoonist Jay Campbell is becoming a celebrity. His PG-life sketches have grown to half-pagers and Jay reports he is negotiating with the Monarch's editorial department for front-page space. Jay – talk to Bill Bates before you sign anything.

PG PROM NIGHT

The band at the ''Fifth Annual Art Prom'' couldn't find the words to any '60s songs, so they made some up for the artists, nostalgia freaks and regulars who tripped back to the '60s at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

Closed-circuit TV monitors televised the dance floor action throughout the galleries. People watched the screens with a sense of deja vu, even though the live action was in the next room.

COWBOY COUNSELOR Doc Etienne held on to his wife Char while she held on to her hat at the wild and wooly ''Rhinestone Roundup.'' (Ray A. March photo.)

Several people there to honor the '60s were probably Sesame Street fans when Grace Slick first sang White Rabbit and they wore costumes they may have found in the back of their parents' closets.

But mixed in the crowd of young would-be hippies were a few old-timers. The original love-child made a surprise appearance and everyone was warned not to drink the fruit punch.

PICTURE THIS

Friday evening in Carmel, about 7:30. A young man on a bicycle, blonde and tan, wearing white shorts and a polo shirt, coasts down Ocean Avenue toward the beach. In his right hand, tucked under the handlebars, he's clutching a dozen red roses.

As he picks up speed he glances down at the roses, quickly leans forward and breathes deeply, catching the romantic scent of rose petals just before he reaches the beach.

COMING OF AGE

By Jennifer Dyer

Nearing the end of the road

SENIOR YEAR has flown by like the Concorde jet. Fall and winter have come and gone and now spring is drawing to a close. The long, foggy months of summer are rapidly heading this way, and only one month more of school remains for students and teachers alike.

But there's an absolute frenzy of things to do in this final stretch, senior activities and plans that have been in preparation all year and will finally culminate with the graduation of the Class of 1991 on June 14.

May is usually thought of as a long, slow month, like pouring real Vermont maple syrup onto freshly made French toast for Mother's Day brunch. But this year, May has been crazier than a hurried breakfast on a Monday morning. The Top 100 dinner was held at the Hyatt on Wednesday, May 8. Students danced the night away at the "Midnight Masquerade" Prom, which was the following Saturday at Carmel's own Mission Inn. Still to come are the Senior Class Picnic (May 19 at the CArmel Valley Community Center), the Senior Class Disneyland Trip (May 23-24), and the CSF Senior Awards Night (May 29 at the CHS Cafeteria). Every participating senior is eagerly anticipating the Disneyland Trip – even the eight-hour drive each way doesn't faze them.

June will be bittersweet, because it's the last month of school, and some seniors will say their last goodbyes to 12 years of good friends and good times. Many students have close buddies they have grown with over time. The closeness and togetherness that some students share with each other is difficult to match. Friends are special, and graduation is a sort of joyful pain of eventual parting.

For many, along with the laughter and the tears will be a sense of expectation at a promising future. The critical Measure A vote will occur June 4 (please vote yes!), and the Baccalaureate (a religious celebration) will be held at Carmel's Outdoor Forest Theater, June 9. Finals will descend upon students like a flu epidemic the following Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Quail Lodge is the location for the Friday morning's fabulous Senior Breakfast.

At the end of all this is the ultimate goal: a Carmel High diploma clutched in a sweaty hand, applauded and congratulated by family and friends on Friday afternoon, June 14. Casino Night follows at the Carmel Youth Center. Seniors play-gamble for prizes and have a fun, rewarding time, thanks to the efforts of dedicated parents who put in many hours decorating, gathering items and preparing endless supplies of food and drink to feed hungry teenagers.

And the next morning will be June 15, a day that will live on as the first day of summer, and the end of childhood. At the end of summer, many seniors will head off to universities across the country.

Every UC campus will become home to a Carmel High senior, and many California state colleges as well. Class of 1991 graduates will also attend Stanford, USC, Sarah Lawrence College, Whitman, the University of Washington, UNLV, and Notre Dame.

Other seniors will continue at MPC, Hartnell or another junior college, and then transfer to a university after two years. This is an ideal option for those who want to save their money, or just aren't ready to go yet. And for the remaining few, employment opportunities will call, and they'll enter the working world.

When T.S. Eliot said that, "What we call the beginning is often the end / And to make our end is to make a beginning / The end is where we start from," he must have been thinking of the transition of child to adult.

Graduation isn't really the end. It's the beginning of the rest of your life, when the fledgling finally spreads his wings and takes his final flight from his parents' nest. Before, he had only taken short sporadic trips; now is the time to finally make the break. Boys and girls reach for the diploma and young men and women take it into their hands. And with that first touch of paper to skin, the transition is complete, and the end of the past has become the beginning of the future.

ASK MARJE!

A column dedicated to successful gardening in the Carmel area

Staghorn ferns

DEAR MARJE:

In the severe freeze this year, I lost three staghorn ferns, which were very new to me. Are these usually good in the Carmel area – and if they are, how do I get some going again.?

A Reader

Dear Reader:

Staghorn ferns are fine for Carmel's climate! This winter was so unusual. I have grown this fern for more than 20 years very successfully – but this year I lost one, too!

You can obtain some specimens from your nursery, or (if you have a generous friend with a good fern) you can lift off an accessible plant or two from the parent. To plant them on a wire basket, this is what I do:

1. Line the basket with a thick layer of sphagnum moss.
2. Make a second layer with a sheet of newspaper.
3. Fill the basket with a mix of seedling bark and soil.
4. Secure the ferns to the outside of the basket with strips of nylon hosiery, which have been cut one-inch wide, spirally down the length of the nylon. This gives stretch to the ties since they are cut on the bias; they will "give" as the plants grow.

Give adequate room between the ferns, since they multiply readily. Place in a shady spot (I attach mine to trees) and water frequently. Feed three times per yeear with a dilute feeding of Miracid. They add a special touch to the Carmel garden.

Doris Day's Best Friends

By Doris Day

We get letters ...

THE BEST way to let you know about our work is to share some of our "Thank you's." In addition to finding homes for homeless pets, we help with spaying and neutering, medical emergencies and pet food for senior citizens. The need is great and we offer assistance as we are financially able.

The following letter is about a kitty we helped in Los Angeles.

Dear Doris Day Pet Foundation:

A mature cat we inherited from a neighbor, who could no longer care for him, was bleeding from a growth in his eye socket. The cost to operate on the eye by a local vet was $200, which we just couldn't afford. The alternative was to destroy the cat because he would bleed to death.

We remembered the DDPF when we were wondering if there might be some free clinic that took care of animals. We called you and, without hesitation, you arranged for the cat to be taken care of at the Panorama Pet Hospital for no fee, but for a donation of whatever we could afford.

We are grateful to the DDPF for your kindness and caring for this one little animal. We thank you so much. Bless you in your work of caring for "all creatures big and small."

Sincerely,

Mrs. William McLeod

This letter warmed my heart and that's my reason for sharing it with you. It's so nice to know we were able to help!

SUMMER SUN CAN BURN YOUR PET

The weather is warming up and sunburn isn't just for humans. White cats and dogs with large pink areas around the nose also can burn. And if your pet has a fresh, short haircut, be sure to keep the animal out of the sun until protective hair grows out again. Some No. 15 sunscreen can protect the exposed areas. Even if your pet licks it off, some will soak into the layers of the skin and help prevent sun damage and skin cancer.

THE "NOSE KNOWS" RITUAL OF CATS

The cat has its own social rituals. A case in point: the "nose knows" greeting. One cat approaches another with his tail standing straight in the air – a signal of friendly intent. If he isn't threatened, he will come closer and make a nose-to-nose contact with the other cat. The ritual is executed very quickly, but it expresses deep trust as well as affection on the part of the initiating cat.

You can mimic this ritual by offering a finger or your own nose for your cat to touch – it's a small way of expressing affection for a feline friend, who may respond in kind.

(This column was written in collaboration with Judy Ruby, director of the Doris Day Pet Foundation, Los Angeles.)

ANOTHER SUCCESS story for the Doris Day Pet Foundation – happy owner, happy pet, happy household.

LOCAL STUDENTS HONORED AS CALIFORNIA ART SCHOLARS

Monterey County's most talented young artists will be recognized for being accepted into one of the nation's most prestigious art programs, the California State Summer School for the Arts (CSSSA), which will be held July 14 through August 11 at Mills College in Oakland.

These young artists will be honored at a special "Arts Recognition Day" reception on May 17 at 4 p.m. at the Windfall Restaurant, Salinas. The students will receive bronze medallions honoring them as California Arts Scholars. Representatives from local state legislators will present certificates to them.

Similar to the school in the TV series "Fame," the CSSA chooses only a select group of students from the hundreds who apply, to attend an intensive arts school, which uses professional and celebrity artists to instruct students in the fields of dance, creative writing, visual arts, music, film, video, theater and crafts.

The students chosen as California Arts Scholars from Monterey County are: Visual arts: Paige Bradley, Carmel Valley; Pia Wilder, King City; Gina Baroni, Christine Edwards, Rebecka Love, Christopher Miller, Karen Sockol, Ellen Stein, Felicia Wellisch, and Bryan Wilcox, Monterey; Karen Griggs, Shyamala Moorty, and Raymundo Morales, Seaside; Serena Romero, Salinas (alternate). Creative writing: Thais Esteban, Pia Wilder (alternate), King City.

Eighteen students applied from Monterey County, with 16 students either being accepted to the program or put on the waiting list. This represents one of the highest acceptance rates in the state. Paige Bradley will be attending for the third year. Shayamala Moorty, Raymundo Morales and Thais Esteban will be attending for the second year. Twelve of the students attend Monterey High School.

Funding for the school is authorized by creation of a public-private partnership accord between the CSSA and the California State Summer School Arts Foundation. The school is also funded by contributions from corporations, foundations and individuals, as well as by tuition fees. El Paso Natural Gas Co. has been a major funder of the program since its inception in 1985 and is sponsoring the Arts Recognition Day ceremony in conjunction with the Monterey County Cultural Council.

The event will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ernst, 4500 Viejo Rd., Carmel from 6 to 8 p.m. Allen is a professor of government at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont and was a candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1986.

"THE MENTAL HEALTH PROFESSIONAL AND THE LAW" SEMINAR

A seminar on "The Mental Health Professional and the Law" will be presented at Monterey College of Law on Saturday, May 18, from 9 a.m. until noon. It is being presented jointly by the law school and the Monterey County Chapter of California Association of Marriage and Family Therapists. It is open to marriage and family therapists, counselors, attorneys, psychologists and other interested individuals. There is a fee and advance registration is required.

The program will be presented by three individuals with years of experience with the subject: The Honorable Richard M. Silver, Monterey County Superior Court; Katherine Stoner, attorney and family law specialist; Dr. Thomas Reidy, psychologist.

Issues to be addressed include: an explanation of the court process; the role of the mental health professional in legal proceedings; legal responsibilities in the everyday practice of therapists.

More information may be obtained by calling Monterey College of Law at 373-3301.

Dr. Robert Meister, professor of politics and law at UC-Santa Cruz, will speak on "National Boundaries After the Persian Gulf War" at the next New Forum luncheon in the Holiday Inn Monday, May 20 at noon.

Meister, whose degrees come from Princeton, Oxford and Harvard, and who completed a post-doctoral fellowship at Harvard Law School, was trained in philosophy, history, government and law.

In his New Forum talk, he will discuss the legitimacy of boundaries, both national and ethnic. "Is Kurdistan as viable as Kuwait?" is a question he will review, as well as the possible break-up of the Soviet Union, which would create new boundaries.

He is expected to contrast events in the USSR with Saddam Hussein's attempt to remove the Kuwait boundary as a step toward unification of the Arab world.

His book, Political Identities: Thinking Through Marx, was published in January in both England and the United States. He also wrote The Legacy and Logic of Dred Scott and is now working on American Constitutional Development.

The May 20 luncheon at Holiday Inn (near the MPC entrance), returns the New Forum to its regular monthly schedule.

Reservations at $15 can be made by calling 375-4518 or writing The New Forum, P.O. Box 22214, Carmel, CA 93922.

Tulua, Lindsay Morris and Sunny Spaulding led the winners' hitting, aided by teammates Oriana Roberts, Shelby Wilson and Adrienne Humiston.

Reports Coach Stadille, "The Clam Box Diggers thrilled their fans May 3 with an awesome 14-4 arrest of the Monterey Police. Kealoha 'Ducky' Seltzer went the distance, giving up only one earned run in an overpowering mound performance. 'Cranefly' Murray, 'Hac' Seltzer, 'Speedy' Hall, and 'Tug' Eagle provided the Clam Box squad with great defense as the Diggers are now 4-3 and in hunt of the softball championship."

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Neighbor above self

From the May 19, 1983
Carmel Pine Cone

Oh Almighty and Eternal God, be pleased to bless this food to our use. Oh Lord, while we are asking for favors, this is a big one that we need: Keep us gentle in word, in deed and in spirit. We boldly walk into a room marked, "Gentlemen," even when we have not had a gentlemanly thought or performed a gentlemanly act for weeks.

Psychiatrists often diagnose us as having an inferiority complex, but most of us have just the opposite. We feel superior to others, and without a qualm, we take credit for all the talents we possess and all the acts that we perform.

When we have special gifts and talents that make us stand out in a crowd, help us to glory in the achievements of others and help us to rejoice in their success.

Finally, what this country needs more than a silent majority is a silent minority and perhaps our lives would be more tranquil if they both took a vow of silence. Amen.

The Golden Years

By Miles Williams

Women on average continue to outlive men, but a new study now suggests one way men can increase longevity: Stay married and live with your wife. The study of men between 45 and 65 found that those who live alone or with someone other than a wife were twice as likely to die within 10 years as those living with their wives. That was the conclusion after evaluating factors such as smoking, drinking, obesity, physical activitity, education and income. Reinforceing the conclusion that living with a spouse makes the difference, the researchers reported that men living with their children or others didn't do any better in longevity than men who lived alone. What about women? The study found that lower income was a greater factor in reduced longevity for women that living without a spouse.

SOHO COUPLE*, a 1988 acrylic on linen, is among the paintings by William A. Rabinovitch opening at the Pacific Grove Art Center. An expressionist from New York City, Rabinovitch had a one-man exhibition in Moscow last spring. He holds an M.F.A. in painting from the San Francisco Institute after earlier art studies at the Boston Museum School. An opening reception is set 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, May 17 at the center, located at 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove. The new exhibits remain on view through June 21.

Multi-media collection opens at Pacific Grove Art Center

THE PACIFIC GROVE Art Center presents the opening of its latest art show Friday, May 17 with a reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Artists, members and friends are all welcome and encouraged to attend. The exhibit, which will run through June 21, will feature an exhibit by Soho expressionist William Rabinovitch in the David Henry Gill Gallery, paintings and drawings by Jean LaFond in the Elmarie Dyke Gallery, "underwater hieroglyphics" by Thomas Fallon Mackey in the Hall Gallery and the photography of Ward V. Roe.

Figurative expressionist William Rabinovitch returns to the Monterey Peninsula with a recent collection of paintings. Working with acrylics on large 66-by-85 inch linen panels, Rabinovitch expresses some of the timeless archtypal dramas of the evolving human spirit.

After a short career as an Air Force aerospace engineer, Rabinovitch moved to the West Coast to study painting full-time. He studied at the Whitney Independent Program and the San Francisco Institute where he earned his M.F.A. in painting. He has had many one man shows at a variety of locations around the world.

Rabinovitch is an established figure in the American art scene. His work has been reproduced in Art News, New York Art Review, Anderson and Archer's Soho, Arts Magazine and Print World Directory. His paintings grace the walls of Monterey Peninsula College, The Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and the New York City's Runner Club. One of his best known murals "Liberty Overture," is on permanent display at the Canal Street Post Office in New York City.

The paintings of Jean LaFond are strongly influenced by meditation with the circle as a symbol of the whole, of wholeness. According to LaFond, "The circle represents for me the deep quiet place, the center in all of us..." Jean LaFond studied at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D.C., at the San Francisco Art Institute and with Hans Hofmann the last year he taught.

"Works on Nautical Charts and Paper" by Thomas Fallon Mackey will be displayed in the Hall Gallery. Mackey is a graduate of the University of California, Santa Cruz. The colors, light and movement in Mackey's art are inspired by diving. Marine algae and fish collected during scuba dives are linked and pressed onto paper to create an impression or print. An offset technique is used in creating the images of sea anemones, urchins and other marine invertebrates that cover rock forms. These images are "drawn" onto an inked glass plate, then transferred to paper using a rubber roll, or brayer. The brayer is then used to detail and layer color over the initial images.

Ward V. Roe is currently instructor of photography and drawing at Marrywood College in Scranton, Pennsylvania. While a student at Marywood College he was awarded the Ruane Medal for excellence in the visual arts. In addition to numerous solo and group exhibits Roe has worked as a staff photographer for Northeast Magazine.

This exhibit captures the dynamics and natural qualities inherent in the human figure. His work has been influenced by the work of Harry Callahan, Edward Weston and Emmett Gowin.

County symphony performs Beethoven choral work

CLARK SUTTLE, music director and conductor of the Monterey County Symphony, will lead the orchestra, four nationally acclaimed soloists, and the newly formed Monterey County Symphony Chorus in the first area performance in more than 10 years of Ludwig Van Beethoven's masterpiece, Symphony No. 9 in D Minor "Choral."

ARTS & LEISURE

Concerts take place at the Sunset Center in Carmel on Sunday, May 19 at 3 p.m. and again on Monday, May 20 at 8 p.m.; at Sherwood Hall in Salinas on Tuesday, May 21 at 8 p.m.; and at Robert Stanton Theater, King City High School Auditorium in King City on Wednesday, May 22 at 7 p.m. Ticket prices range from $5 to $21.

The final concert of the Monterey County Symphony's 45th anniversary season includes Gioacchino Rossini's Overture to The Barber of Seville."

Appearing with the orchestra as soloists in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony are Kay Paschal, soprano; Karen Brunssen, mezzo-soprano; David Rudat, tenor; and John Ostendorf, bass-baritone.

The Monterey County Symphony issues a final call for a first-class bus excursion travelling to King City on Wednesday, May 22. This event marks the first performance in 10 years by the Monterey County Symphony in King City's acoustically superior and architecturally significant Robert Stanton Theater.

Buses will leave Sunset Center in Carmel at 5 p.m. and arrive back at 10:30 p.m. The cost of the trip, gourmet box supper, cocktails, and concert ticket is $50. Tickets for other concerts of this set can be exchanged, thus reducing the cost to $32.50. For more information, call the orchestra office at 624-8511.

The designer of the theater, architect Robert Stanton (1900-1983), received his license in 1934 and brought his practice to Monterey in 1935. He earned a reputation as an innovator and specialist in schools, hospitals, and public building design. He conceived monolithic colored concrete wall structures which require no painting or maintenance. He also developed bilateral lighting for school classrooms. His favorite public buildings were the Monterey County Courthouse in Salinas and the King City High School Auditorium.

Stanton, a gifted singer and musician, was educated in the needs of a theater and conducted extensive research on the acoustical considerations of this multi-purpose hall. As a testament to his thoroughness, there is no acoustically "dead" spot anywhere in the Art Moderne hall. The building was constructed of poured concrete brought into place by local workers using wheelbarrows. It was funded by the Works Progress Administration in 1939 and stands in perfect condition on the corner of North Mildred and Broadway in King City.

For additional information, call 624-8511 or 1-800-698-1138.

Thursday's auction will launch the scholarship fund, and will include not only Stone's painting but also works by art department staff and students. For details, call 624-1821.

Travel film pays visit to Argentina — 'Land of Passion'

ARGENTINA — The Land of Passion to be shown Friday, May 17, will conclude the 1990/91 World Traveler Film Series sponsored by the Sunset Cultural Center and the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Show times are 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. The film is produced and presented by Buddy Hatton.

People often think of Argentina — four times the size of Texas — only in terms of the pampas, with its fetile grassland that feeds some of the finest livestock in the world. The landscape of this country is varied and unquestionably beautiful. Along Argentina's entire western boundary are the Andes — the mountain range second in height only to the Himalayas. In the southern region is Bariloche, the heart of the Lake District's resort life.

The land of the gaucho, the land of the adventurer, the land of the portenos — all captured by Buddy Hatton to be seen and enjoyed. From Buenos Aires, "The Paris of South America," to the towering mountain ranges, Iguazu Falls, gold-covered church altars and chic ski and gaming resorts, this tour guarantees unforgettable images and memories.

Buddy Hatton has spent the better part of his life in some form of show business. As a teenager he produced his own radio and television show and had fellow teenager, Johnny Mathis, as one of his regularly featured guests. He expanded his knowledge and expertise in every phase of the entertainment industry including stints as a television show host, record producer, talent manager, commercial spokesman for numerous major corporations, and career in radio.

A love of people and excitement in discovering new places, along with his professional experiences, becoming a travelogue producer was a natural progression. Everywhere Hatton appears presenting his films, his cinematography and stage presence continues to delight audiences.

Tickets for the travelogue are $5 and may be purchased in advance at the Sunset Center office or at the theater box office just prior to each showing. For further information call 624-3996.

The Sunset Theater is located on San Carlos Street at 9th in Carmel.

Tapestry of tropical themes

County students accepted into State Summer School for the Arts

MONTEREY COUNTY's talented young artists will be recognized for being accepted into one of the nation's most prestigious art programs, the California State Summer School for the Arts (CSSSA), which will be held July 14 through Aug. 11 at Mills College in Oakland.

These young artists will be honored at a special "Arts Recognition Day" reception on May 17 at 4 p.m. at the Windfall Restaurant, Salinas, the students will receive bronze medallions honoring them as California Arts Scholars. Representatives from local state legislators will present certificates to them.

Similar to the school in the TV series "Fame," the CSSSA chooses only a select group of students from the hundreds who apply, to attend an intensive arts school which uses professional and celebrity artists to instruct students in the fields of dance, creative writing, visual arts, music, film, video, theater and crafts.

The students chosen as Caliornia Arts Scholars from Monterey County are: Visual arts: Paige Bradley, Carmel Valley; Pia Wilder, King City; Gina Baroni, Christine Edwards, Rebecka Love, Christopher Miller, Karen Sockol, Ellen Stein, Felicia Wellisch, and Bryan Wilcox, Monterey; Karen Griggs, Shyamala Moorty, and Raymundo Morales, Seaside; Serena Romero, Salinas (alternate). Creative writing: Thais Esteban, Pia Wilder (alternate), King City.

Eighteen students applied from Monterey County, with 16 students either being accepted to the program or put on the waiting list. This represents one of the highest acceptance rates in the state. Paige Bradley will be attending for the third year. Shayamala Moorty, Raymundo Morales and Thais Esteban will be attending for the second year. Twelve of the students attend Monterey High School.

Funding for the school is authorized by the creation of a public-private partnership accord between the CSSSA and the California State Summer School Arts Foundation. The school is also funded by contributions from corporations, foundations and individuals, as well as by tuition fees. El Paso Natural Gas Company has been a major funder of the program since its inception in 1985 and is sponsoring the Arts Recognition Day ceremony in conjunction with the Monterey County Cultural Council.

THAT SO-called Battle of the Sexes will come under formal consideration Friday and Saturday, May 17-18, in Sunset Center's Chapman Room as Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung offers a lecture and workshop entitled "Patriarchal Gods in Evolutionary Process."

Both elements will be given by John Weir Perry, a Jungian analyst in San Francisco for more than 40 years. Friday's session starts at 7 p.m. and Saturday's at 10 a.m. The public's invited; donations are suggested "to help defray expenses."

Tutored by Jung himself, Dr. Perry has researched the 5,000-year-old rise of the patriarchy in myth and Near Eastern political fact. His books claim that mankind's spiritual evolution is reflected in male-oriented myth and ritual. Other interpreters, including strong voices within the women's movement, see the patriarchal takeover as a negative detour.

Both events will have discussion periods, according to Joseph Pagano of the host group. Information number: 649-8809.

Seminar focuses on the birthing process

Suzanne Arms, photojournalist, will speak at 7 p.m. Monday, at the Monterey Peninsula Unitarian Church, 490 Aguajito, Carmel, on the topic "Childbirth in the 90s."

Tickets may be purchased in advance for $7 and at the door for $10.

Suzanne Arms has been involved in women's health issues for the past 25 years and is the author of a number of books, including Immaculate Deception: A New Look at Women and Childbirth.

THEATER REVIEW

By Mary Louise Burdick-Hartmann

'Driving Miss Daisy' opens at GroveMont

PERHAPS A small alteration might be in order for the title of Alfred Uhry's Pulitzer Prize-winning play about the evolving relationship between a perverse Southern doyenne and the self-assured, but perceptive black man engaged to be her chauffeur.

"Forgiving Miss Daisy" could have been more apt.

For the two-act drama/comedy now on the boards of the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey is in large measure an allegorical, though non-preaching excursion into the fathomless sea of the human condition; its fragility and mulishness, but also its capacity, even more, its need for trust, affection and friendship.

Staged in an Atlanta setting spanning a quarter century, 1948-1973, "Daisy" brings a close-up lens to the sojourn of an aging, heretofore highly independent Jewish widow of means whose son insists she no longer drive her car. His decision introduces into her life, much against her will, a middle-aged black man, Hoke, who harbors few illusions about the underlying tenor of their initial relationship: "You need a driver and I need a job."

More than anything, fearful of losing a treasured sense of privacy and control of her life – but also not yet free of the shibboleths of those times ("They all take things") – Daisy slowly, not always unreluctantly, begins to understand that an outstretched hand, no matter its hue, is of greater value than even self-sufficiency.

And similarly, of course, Hoke gradually crawls out of his own shell, admitting to her he cannot read and toward the play's end, nearly blind, visiting her at a nursing home.

Since millions applauded Jessica Tandy's Academy Award-winning tour de force in the recent film version, comparisons are unavoidable.

So let it be said, sans hesitation, that Regina Hicks, in the title role, deserves a statuette of her own. Being a woman of more generous dimensions than her screen counterpart, Hicks has no need to harness the wheedling, martyring qualities employed by Tandy. Rather, she brings her character to life with verve, wit, even gusto. There is no question as to who commands the stage when Ms. Hicks makes her entrance.

As the chauffeur, veteran performer Brad Vaughn graces his role with sensitivity and an endearing feel for wry humor. Bravo – Mr. Vaughn!

Air Force Captain John C. D'Auria, as "Boolie," Miss Daisy's dutiful and anxiety-plagued son, renders yeoman service in a role whose paramount purpose is to be overshadowed by the other two.

Director Dan Gotch has no reason to hide his light. He approached his task with insight to the play's historic period and underlying ethos – and he had the good sense to give his actors their head.

Others among the back-stage crew also deserve kudos; particularly those responsible for the spartan but effective sets; likewise the make-up people, who conveyed a believable aging process among the performers without the special effects available to their Hollywood confreres.

Were the reader to insist on a criticism, it might be that some of the lines be more clearly enunciated. Blocking also could be modified in a few scenes.

With movie theater prices what they are, next week treat yourself to the pleasure – and bargain – of Driving Miss Daisy.

It continues Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. until June 1.

Ehrmann, a local writer, has been a spiritual counselor in Monterey for many years. Her last play, Borderline, dealt with the generational effects of alcoholism.

MUSIC CORNER

By Nathalie Plotkin

I Cantori di Carmel presents musical sampler

WITH 67 voices and 33 musicians, Sal Ferrantelli and I Cantori di Carmel celebrated 10 years of successful existence on the Monterey Peninsula musical scene. Joined by the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra, they performed the first of two anniversary concerts in the First Presbyterian Church of Monterey and the other to follow in the Carmel Mission.

The program was a sampler and survey of the art of choral singing drawn from concerts given by the group from 1981 to 1989 and performed more or less in the order of their appearance on these programs. They ranged from a charming Renaissance song by Passereau to a magnificently presented "Ave Maria" by Bruckner, visiting briefly along the way with Vivaldi, Handel, Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Brahms, Faure, and Verdi, singing some 16 selections in all.

Thereby hangs one of the two major problems I found with the evening. Programming in this vein may have seemed like an innovative and intriguing idea, but it didn't translate well in actuality. No sooner did one settle down and start to tune in on and enjoy the lovely Faure "Cantique de Jean Racine" with its wonderful, tenderly mellow and romantically swelling choral tone and a lush oboe line expertly outlined by Donna Forster, that it came to an end and it was time to switch gears to the 16th century light staccato expertly produced choral humor of "Il est bel et bon" by Passereau. Then it was time for two very short selections from a Haydn "Missa Brevis."

Not only is it difficult for the ear to keep adjusting to these quick musical changes, there is a resulting sensation of disorientation because one is accustomed to having works performed with continuity and coherence. Also, the chorus and orchestra are hard pressed switching styles, moods, keys and periods. No momentum was built up and the patter of applause after each brief offering was distracting. It would have been far more satisfying to have programmed larger segments touching on fewer years, musical highpoints instead of isolated items, no matter how well conveyed.

The other problem was the acoustics of the church. I believe I can make an educated speculation that the second concert sung Saturday night in the Carmel Mission was far more exciting and better balanced tonally. Whereas, on Friday night I Cantori mostly sounded muffled except for the more brilliant passages of the Vivaldi "Gloria," the Handel "Coronation Anthem" and the Mendelssohn "Psalm 42." There was some fine quiet singing, but the vocal tone lacked sheen and focus. The late Romantic musical writing of the Brahms "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place" and the Bruckner "Ave Maria" were excellently realized and both were very moving, overcoming all obstacles beautifully.

The orchestra held up well in spite of a daunting array of musical changes and an unusually curtailed preparation time, though, as usual, they tended to drown out the chorus. It appeared that whenever Ferrantelli was exhorting his singers to greater effort, the players couldn't help but respond the same way. The few vocal solos were taken by unidentified singers drawn from the ranks of I Cantori and soprano Sheri Rose sang sensitively in Verdi's "La Vergine degli Angeli."

As one usually says after a birthday celebration, "Many Happy Returns."

Blast from the Bayou

THE STATE of Louisiana has contributed in a variety of ways to America's popular culture – Cajun and Creole food, Mardi Gras, and Will Clark.

But perhaps Louisiana's most lasting contribution to popular culture is music – from Dixieland jazz and that singular, rolling New Orleans piano style popularized by Professor Longhair, Huey "Piano" Smith and Fats Domino to bluegrass-inflected Cajun and blues and R&B-influenced zydeco.

The latter forms of music, long popular in the south-central U.S. has been spreading its wings and reaching other parts of the country, so much so that now Cajun and zydeco music performers are making names for themselves from New York to Los Angeles. Spurred on by the interest generated by the film The Big Easy, Paul Prudhomme's blackened redfish and the annual Mardi Gras festival, bayou performers such as the Neville Brothers, Dr. John, Beausoleil, Zachary Richard, Buckwheat Zydeco, Dirty Dozen Brass Band, and Katie Webster are all gaining new fans across the country.

Perhaps the one underlying theme that ties all the above performers together is that the music they play has feeling – deep and heartfelt, and even though the lyrics may sometimes reflect the downside of life – lamentations about hard living and lost love – there's always a sense of hope and perseverance. Not only that, but most of it's foot-tapping good-time music, as they say in Louisiana, laissez les bon temps roulez, "Let the good times roll."

"If you come down to Louisiana, say to Lafayette – if you don't have a good time you're hangin' around with the wrong people," laughed musician Wayne Toups during a recent phone interview from his hometown of Crowley, La. "It's a very emotionally involved area down here – people are one of a kind."

Toups was about to embark on a West Coast tour touting his latest album on PolyGram, Fish Out of Water, which comes hot on the heels of his previous recording, Blast From the Bayou, which introduced Toups and his unique blend of Cajun and zydeco forms to a wider audience.

"I think my music is definitely a strong groove-type music with Cajun influences being the root," said Toups, who started playing the accordion at age 14. "It's a blend of Cajun, zydeco, R&B and rock that'll knock your socks off. It's definitely a happy style of music."

Toups, whose early influences included such Cajun music pioneers as Iry Lejeune and Belton Richard, also counts Otis Redding, Aretha Franklin and Duane Allman and the Allman Brothers as favorites. With a background such as that it was only a matter of time before Toups blended it all together into a rich and zesty gumbo – a Cajun-zydeco foundation, with rock and R&B soul and energy. In fact, Toups, whose high-energy shows are legendary, has often been called the "Bayou Bruce Springsteen" and even "Le Boss," bringing all of the Jersey rocker's power and passion to his singular music.

Toups last trip here saw him perform a fiery set at Laguna Seca's outdoor amphitheater and a wildly received set at the San Francisco Blues Festival the next day.

"This style of music has been hidden so long, it's great it's coming out now," Toups said.

Wayne Toups & Zydecajun will hit the peninsula again, this time on Tuesday, May 21 at Doc Ricketts' Lab on Cannery Row for one show starting at 9 p.m. Santa Cruz blues band Ken Arconti & Blowtop Blues Band opens. Tickets are $10. Be prepared to sweat and dance up a storm.

TOUPS & ZYDECAJUN will also be performing this weekend at the annual New Orleans by the Bay Festival at Mountain View's Shoreline Amphitheater.

The festival is set for noon to 7 p.m. Saturday, May 18 and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday, May 19 and features on Saturday: Toups, The Neville Brothers, Katie Webster, Champion Jack Dupree, Al Rapone & Zydeco Express, Jimmy Wood & The Immortals, California Cajun Orchestra, Mitch Woods & His Rocket 88's, Professor Plum's Jazz, Muggsy Remembered, Jackie Coon Quintet, Mal Sharpe & Big Money in Dixieland, Spirit of '29, Zenith New Orleans Parade Band, and more.

Sunday features The Neville Brothers, Queen Ida, Joe Louis Walker & the Boss Talkers, Ivan Neville, Sundogs, Roy Rogers & Delta Rhythm Kings, Katie Webster, California Cajun Orchestra, Freeze Guillory & Nouveau Zydeco, Devil Mountain Jazz Band, Pat Yankee & Her Gentlemen of Jazz, Natural Gas Jazz Band, Professor Plum, Simcha Klezmer Orchestra, Madeline Eastman, Denise Perrier, Connie Champagne, Wally Rose and the Zenith New Orleans Parade Band, and more. Whew!

Tickets are at all BASS outlets or by calling (408) 998-BASS. Admission is $12.50 each day.

JERRY FORD and company are at it again.

Ford, he of the now-infamous annual Pelican Bent-A-Fit Ball, will mount another benefit Thursday, May 23 for the fledgling community access television station, KCAH-25. The last benefit drew three top Monterey Bay Area bands – Lovers & Strangers, Bombay and The Young Presidents – and a club full of rock fans. Best souvenir from that night was a free "Official KCAH-25 UHF Antenna" handed out to each ticketholder: a wire coathanger complete with directions ("scrape paint from cut ends...").

This time Ford has arranged for three more of the bay area's best bands to play for the station, which is so fledgling that it only broadcasts 18 hours a day, three days a week, from 5 to 11 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

"We're rolling right along," said the upbeat Ford Monday. "We're moving soon to a new facility at 843 N. Main St. (in Salinas). We're going to blow the lid off this scene."

Getting Ford and his crew on the right track to shake up the local broadcast scene will be Santa Cruz' Boys Choir, Monterey's The Cubes, and peninsula newcomers Sonic Graffiti, a "straight-ahead" rock band which Ford says has been together about four or five months and features "real strong vocals in a Grace Slick-Janis Joplin style" from Nancy Higgins.

The event is set for 8 p.m. May 23 at The Club of Monterey, 321 Alvarado St. Cost is only $6 at the door (hey, that's only $2 per band, kids). The show will be taped for future broadcast on KCAH-25. (To get KCAH-25 you have to unhook your cable, turn the VHF dial to "U" and "UHF" to 25.) Call 'em at 757-1540 to get a copy of their program guide.

WHILE WE'RE on the subject of Boys Choir, these winners of the Battle of the Bands a few years back have a new release out – Hymns from the Savage Garden, out on the Soquel-based Sonic Design Records.

Taking their The Police/U-2 foundation, they layer their sound with dark and moody influences like The Cure, Love & Rockets and Bauhaus on this new recording.

Here's how the band describes Hymns: "This 10-tune collection revolves around the concept of the planet as a 'savage garden' full of beauty and pain. It's an ethereal amalgam of playful dance-rock and harshly poetic lyrics that confront the darker side of human nature."

I couldn't have said it better myself.

HE MAY not get as much press as his contemporaries such as Jimmy Vaughn and Albert Collins, but Anson Funderburgh may be one of the finest of the blues guitar slingers to come out of Texas.

Funderburgh and The Rockets, featuring Sammy Myers, will blow into town Sunday, May 19 at Doc Ricketts' Lab on Cannery Row. Start time is 9 p.m. with Santa Cruz' The Back Alley Band opening.

Funderburgh's strengths, much like Vaughn's, are in his clean, spare, economical playing; not a note is wasted, but neither is an emotion, which he gets plenty out of his guitar without overstating the obvious.

Armed with his signature Stratocaster, Funderburgh rips offs crisp, stinging leads while Myers, who sings and plays harp and was a bandmate of Elmore James, adds his gritty tones and smoky harp playing as counterpoint. The band's second release in 1988 on the small Black Top Records, Sins won four prestigious W.C. Handy awards for Contemporary Blues Album of the Year, Blues Band of the Year, Blues Song of the Year (Changing Neighborhoods), and Best Instrumentalist (won by Myers for his harp prowess).

The Rockets are Danny Cochran on drums, Jim Milan on bass, and Matt McCabe on piano. The band's latest release is Rack 'Em Up, also on Black Top, the blues arm of the respected Rounder Records.

Tickets are $8 and are available by calling 649-4241.

Also on the docket at the Cannery Row club: Jimmy Wood and the Immortals (Bruce Springsteen's harmonica player), Thursday, May 16 (with Young Presidents opening); Greg Kihn Band returns after selling out his last time at Doc's, Monday, May 20 (with Lovers & Strangers); Mark Isham plays jazz Wednesday, May 22 (with Marguerite Conti, folk/jazz band opening).

THE CATALYST in Santa Cruz continues with its usual eclectic lineup.

Here's a look at the rest of May, which started with ex-Byrd Roger McGuinn on May Day and ends with Latin percussionist (and father of Prince protege Sheila E.), Pete Escovedo:

The Batteries, May 16; The Tubes, May 18; Bob Mould, May 22; Throwing Muses, May 24; John Wesley Harding, May 25; Pete Escovedo, May 31, and for June 1, Jr. Walker & The All-Stars.

Tickets are available at all BASS outlets. Call 423-1336 for info.

Zantman Galleries honor California artist Emily Burns

CALIFORNIA ARTIST Emily Burns will present her latest oil paintings in her 10th solo exhibition at Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission in Carmel. The artist will be present at a public reception on Saturday, May 18, from 4 to 7 p.m.

Since Emily Burns first joined the Zantman Art Galleries in 1972, collectors have enjoyed her unique spattered technique of what, in the artists own words are her "grass and flower" paintings. Her application of several layers of paint to suggest foreground grasses, wildflowers and blossoms has become a trademark of her work, and she often accents these paintings with one or more wild birds, whether they be songbirds, waterfowl or the California quail. The canvases are large, cheerful and inviting.

But colorful landscapes in her familiar spattered style are not the single vision of Emily Burns. In the early 1980's, after being contacted about the work of her father, an early California artist, Burns began to study her father's work. She tried painting in his style as a change of pace. After experimenting for some time, her own impressionistic style emerged, and she set about creating her own version of Impressionism. These paintings represent a more contemplative side to her personality; they are usually smaller in scale and the technique is controlled and deliberate.

Representing over 75 artists from the United States and Europe, the Zantman galleries feature a broad spectrum of mediums and styles in paintings and sculptures. Each month Zantman Art Galleries feature an artist – sometimes two – in a special exhibition of a large number of the artists' works. This is preceded by the mailing of a comprehensive brochure to the many thousands of clients the gallery has attracted over the years, and there is always a reception for the artist about midway in the duration of the show.

For more information call 624-8314.

PLUM BLOSSOMS and Wildflowers is among the original oil paintings by Emily Burns now featured at the Zantman Art Galleries in Carmel-by-the-Sea. A reception is set 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, May 18 at the Sixth Avenue at Mission Street Zantman location.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Antic inspiration

NEWSBREAK: Absolutely brilliant jazz pianist and composer Milcho Leviev will play public concerts in this area on May 25-26. Info coordinator Bob Phillips says Leviev will perform at Shanty Malone's in Valley Hills Center — trio setting, solo recital, jam session centerpiece.

Originally from Bulgaria, Milcho now lives in Los Angeles and will be visiting Carmel Valley friends during his stay here. He has recorded and done live dates with some of the best (Don Ellis Orchestra, Dave Holland, John Klemmer, Art Pepper, Roy Haynes, Herman Riley, Carmen McRae, Willie Bobo, Eddie Jefferson, on and on). His discography reaches just short of forever — and he has been a University of Southern California lecturer in jazz composition and improvisation since 1986.

More details next time. Critic Leonard Feather wrote: "Leviev is an amazing musician. His cascading runs and massive tone clusters all were touched by an antic inspiration that resembles no other pianist in jazz."

THERE'S STILL time to get tickets. Tony Bennett will be guest of honor Saturday night (5/18) when Simic Galleries sponsors a dinner in The Lodge at Pebble Beach. The occasion benefits Youth Music Monterey — so call Michele Noseworthy of that office (375-1992) about prices and reservations.

Simic, of course, represents the side of Tony that shines as a visual artist. Bennett works are mounted right now at the Carmel galleries.

Simic spokesperson Mary Piazza says the Tony Bennett 40th Anniversary Exhibit (four decades in the music business) opens May 17. The public's invited throughout this weekend (5/17-18-19). Tony's new and limited edition lithograph called Central Park will have its first showing.

SAD NEWS for trad jazz buffs. Event prexy Alice Leyland says the annual Fats Waller Memorial Jazz Festival shan't be staged this year.

Alice explains that the hosting city — Watsonville — still suffers "a state of post-earthquake economic depression. It is difficult to ask the local business community to support the festival when they are trying to keep their doors open from day to day."

Alice says there will be a Fats Waller Fest next year. June 21-22-23. If you'd care to help, a $25 donation will get you a festival T-shirt (indicate size), an enameled Fats pin, and 10 percent off two three-day badges (1992 edition).

Address: PO Box 347; Watsonville 95077. Since the fest's a non-profit, donations are tax deductible.

The same press packet contains word that Pajaro Valley Chamber of Commerce sponsors a fundraiser. Drawing will be held July 1. Winner nails down an August trip to Yugoslavia, Venice and Vienna with the High Sierra Jazz Band and Greentown Jazz Band (8/10-26).

Covered: air travel, hotel room with two beds and private bath daily, transportation, land tours, admission to all jazz festivals and concerts, sightseeing in various cities.

It's $5 for one ticket or $20 for five. Contact the Chamber at PO Box 470; Watsonville 95077. Again — tax deductible.

AND ONE more off-peninsula item has sadness in it. Her local friends will want to know that jazz portrait artist Bruni Sablan sustained substantial losses when thieves hit her Old Town Art Center in Los Gatos.

They ripped off paintings valued at a total of $25,000 — including a $4,000 depiction of Bird Parker. Police speculated that the crime was planned carefully and said they may have a suspect.

"It could have been a former employee," officer Mike Barbieri reported. "The thieves either picked the lock or had a key. There was no forced entrance."

Bruni: "It was a real professional job. They obviously cased the place out and knew me and what the work's worth. The paintings were not insured."

"There isn't anybody around here late at night," gallery manager Mark Gray added. "The thieves probably were paid by a private collector. It's cheaper to pay someone to steal paintings than to buy them yourself."

NEW VOICES: Carmel's KRML Jazz Radio has taken on two more staffers. Eugene Huguez now handles the weekday early morning show (6-9) while Jim Mason's the Saturday night host (6-12). Both bring much experience in other markets.

Station honcho Gil Wisdom says Huguez will double as sales manager. Eugene's from Santa Barbara and has a pleasantly economical on-air style. He does thoughtful pairings like Chris Conner's Blame It On My Youth leading into Children's Play Song by Bill Evans.

Jim came up in Nashville and has a laid back delivery. He's well-informed and says he prefers tracks with a strong groove. Gil: "He really knows The Blues."

Ken Haun, the former early weekday host, chose to concentrate on sales. His special wit and feel for Brazilian artists will be missed.

"We'll debut a new big band show," Gil says. "Saturday or Sunday afternoon. It'll be for dancers as well as listeners – an unusual approach."

MULTIPLE REEDMAN John Cortes will front a quartet at Barbara Murphy's Portofino Coffee House in Pacific Grove on May 23. Door charge for the Thursday night gig – $6 per.

Don't miss the high-level interplay between Cortes and keyboardist John Donaldson. Bob Blankenship on drums and Steve Burstyn's bass. Starts at eight o'clock.

British tenorman Courtney Pine has cancelled out on Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz. So no show over there on Monday evening (5/20).

On Friday night (5/17) Hidden Valley Music Seminars brings back the hot Latin group Tocara. "By popular demand," says series coordinator Richard Armbrust. "And you can bet it's a dance concert."

Only $10 apiece. Box office opens at 7:30 and the show starts half an hour later. Or use Center Stage Ticketing.

Papa Jake and those Abalone Stompers will play on Saturday (5/18) during The Barnyard's Art and Wine Festival. The five-hour celebration starts at noon.

Monterey Bay Club has Terry Hanck and his Soulrockers on Friday and Saturday nights (5/17-18).

Critic at Large...

IT MAY be a tad early, but here's the lineup for the Steinbeck Music Festival, slated for July 13 and 14 at Bolado Park at San Benito County Fairgrounds in Hollister.

On the bill for Saturday will be New Riders of the Purple Sage, The Edlos, Horse Opry, Solid Air, Steve Kritzer & Friends, David Beaudry and Steve Seskin. On Sunday the bill includes Seldom Scene, Dr. Loco & His Rockin' Jalapeno Band, David Maloney, Mystery Train with Steve Rice and Johnny Perri (of Eddie & the Tide fame), Alisa Fineman, Harmony Grits and Gospel Hour.

The event, which will also feature camping, swimming, food booths, arts and crafts and special children's programs, is a benefit for the Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council. Tickets, available at the gate or through BASS outlets, are $10 each day, $5 each day for children and seniors, with children 5 and under free.

Info's at 633-2484.

THE LINEUP this season at Villa Montalvo, located in Saratoga only a few miles from the popular Paul Masson Summer Series up the road, is beginning to look a lot like its better-known neighbor.

Artists advised on how to work with galleries

Bay Area artist Eleanor Dickinson will address the perpetual problem for the professional artist: how to make the perfect match between artist and gallery. She will advise how to evaluate a gallery (or other exhibition space) and, having determined that you have found the right gallery for your work, how to make an effective approach to the gallery.

This program is co-sponsored by Artists Equity Central Coast Chapter, the Pacific Grove Art Center, Santa Cruz Art League, Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation, Carmel Art Association and the Cherry Foundation. It takes place Monday, May 20 at 7 p.m. at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

Dickinson speaks from experience; her resume lists more than 30 solo shows in the past 20 years and participation in more than 60 group shows during that same period. She is professor of art at California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland, was director of the CCAC Gallery from 1975 to the present, and has been producer for the TV Channel 25 series "The Art of the Matter' since 1986. She has also lectured, conducted workshops, participated in symposia, consulted and served on numerous boards of professional organizations throughout the country. She is a national vice-president of Artists Equity Association.

While active in teaching and arts advocacy organizations, Dickinson manages to create a significant body of work in diverse media. She has studied art and art history at the University of California, drawing at both the San Francisco Art Institute and the Academie de la Grande Chaumiere in Paris, art law at Golden Gate University and she has an M.F.A. in film and video from California College of Arts and Crafts.

Reviewing a show of her work in the September 1989 Art in America, Peter Selz wrote: "In these poignant, self-contained images Dickinson has managed to universalize individual distress and hope...The 1980s has, among other and more pecuniary trends, seen a new and intensive search for spiritual values among non-mainstream artists. Eleanor Dickinson pre-dates many of them and is among the strongest and most demanding." Her most recent show (with Paul Mavrides) at the San Francisco gallery Show 'n' Tell was reviewed in March 7, 1991, issue of Artweek where reviewer Terri Cohn referred to "the concrete power of her images" and described a series of paintings which capture "a metaphorical struggle between good and evil."
